PROTECTION FROM "slamming"

You may be surprised to receive a long distance telephone bill from a telephone company you don't recognize. This may mean you have been "slammed", which means your long distance telephone service has been switched without your knowledge or permission. State and Federal rules can protect you from "slamming."

As a telephone customer, you may ask your local telephone company to "freeze" your long distance carrier. This means that your carrier cannot be switched unless your local telephone company receives notice directly from you to request the switch.

Call your local telephone company if you would like to "freeze" your long distance carrier. For more information on what to do if you have been "slammed," contact the FCC at 1-888-225-5322 or visit the FCC website at www.fcc.gov or the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission website at www.state.mn.us.

511 TRAVELER information service
